ABSTRACT

A lamp apparatus for a liquid crystal display that is capable of preventing a wire breakage of the lamp apparatus. In the apparatus, a lamp causes a discharge by a voltage applied from a power terminal to generate light. A wire is supplied with the voltage. A connector electrically connects the power terminal of the lamp to the wire using a pressing. The power terminal of the lamp and the wire electrically connected to each other and the connector are integrated.

Appl. No. 10/750,904